Management of Leading-Edge Strategies

Course code: ML91 From: 26-10-2026 Venue: Amsterdam - Course Fees: 5150 £

Introduction

This fast-paced course allows you to step back from the day-to-day stresses of management and consider how to best cope with and thrive in an ever-complex and changing future. Rather than covering all aspects of management, the course focuses on those topics from which many Management Professionals could benefit in terms of their impact on stakeholders and careers.

This course will give participants a holistic view of their larger organizational and strategic context, as well as the tools they need to have a meaningful impact on the effectiveness of their organization.

The highlights of this course are:

- How to analyse the external and internal forces at work in an organization
- How to develop and communicate a compelling strategic vision
- How to measure and manage performance
- How to build value-added change into the daily management activities
- How to become an initiator of change rather than playing constant catch-up
- How to develop a high-performance team

Course Objectives of Management of Leading-Edge Strategies

By the end of this course, you will be able to:

- Become an agent for value-added change
- Coach individuals and teams to achieve extraordinary goals
- Select appropriate methods for measuring and managing performance
- Be in tune with the team's effectiveness and be able to turn morale around if and when necessary

- Facilitate problem-solving groups that will deliver results on time and within budget
- Develop employees to take more responsibility
- Learn to use best-practice strategies for influencing and motivating others

Course Methodology of Management of Leading-Edge Strategies

This course will be fast-paced interactive and fun! The learning process will employ state-of-the-art adult learning techniques that enable people to learn by listening, seeing, discussing, and hands-on practice – all within a relaxed and enjoyable environment.

World-class management practices will be shared to see how they can be applied in participant organizations. Participants will also be given time to share their ideas in open sessions as well as in small group settings. They will be constantly busy and engaged in hands-on exercises, case discussions, and simulations that are customized to fit the reality of their working world.

Participants will return to work with an action plan they can put into practice immediately.
