Media Planning Strategy

Course code: PR194 From: 04-05-2026 Venue: Barcelona (Spain) - Course Fees: 5000 £

Introduction

This course examines the process of delivering your organization's messages to the right target audience in an effective and cost-effective manner.

The advent of digital media has completely altered the media landscape and blurred the lines between marketing and public relations/communications. Paid media in the form of advertising is no longer the default setting. Media planning determines the best mix of media to achieve campaign objectives. This course examines the nature of the mix of paid, earned and owned media. Setting clear objectives and strategies to achieve your business goals is essential for successful media planning. Market analysis, the development, and implementation of media strategies, evaluation, and follow-up are all part of media planning. A media plan should reflect significant research that produces a detailed rationale for all media activities. Information that should be included in a media plan is the objective, strategy, rationale, execution, and summary.

This course will highlight the following key topics:

- Audience planning, targeting, and segmentation
- Research techniques for customer insight
- Audience measurement and media metrics
- How to allocate a media budget across channels
- Analyze the strengths of a range of media
- Media strategy and strategic thinking
