Strategies Planning of Marketing

Course code: MS110 From: 06-12-2026 Venue: Qatar - Course Fees: 3550 £

Introduction

This course focuses on the simple, yet undeniable fact that good marketing has never been more important than now. In a world of a million "me-toos," countless product comparison websites, and the omnipresence of social media, your customers are confronted with an intriguing paradox:

- They have never been so well informed, yet
- they have never been more perplexed

Customers are completely distracted, and their attention spans are at an all-time low. Companies are striving for relevance, and achieving differentiation has never been more difficult. The goal of this training course is to address and correct these critical issues.

This course will highlight:

- How to build clear, compelling value and communicate it to the right audience, at the right time in the right medium
- How to analyze and segment the market and then craft compelling value propositions that get attention and bring in revenues
- How to gain a deep insight into consumer behavior and learn how to market to it
- How to Establish metrics for the measurement of marketing program effectiveness
- How to Oversee the company marketing function to identify new customers for products and services
- How to Establish short and long-range marketing plans, objectives, and operating procedures
- How to Explore new ways to identify and engage new customers using social media platforms
