Setting Priorities, Time Management & Stress Reduction

Course code: ML99 From: 16-03-2026 Venue: London - Course Fees: 5000 £

Introduction

Successful people set goals and objectives for themselves. They know what they need to do, and how they need to do it and have a strategy in place to help them get there. One of the key skills required to be successful and add value to your organization is the ability to plan and prioritize your day.

Time is one of our most valuable resources, but it is not always managed as effectively as it could be. This can create a stressful work environment, preventing you from being successful and reaching your goals.

Most people deny being stressed or affected by internal or external workplace factors. Organizations must recognize stress in their employees and train staff and management on how to manage stress productively as the cost of stress to the employer continues to rise. According to a recent survey, 1 in 5 people reports their work to be very or extremely stressful, citing the nature of their work, workplace relationships, or their employer as the source.

This highly interactive course will provide you with the tools and techniques you need to manage your time and stress in a proactive and effective manner.

This course will focus on:

- How to set yourself realistic goals and objectives
- The Importance of Planning and Prioritizing daily, weekly and monthly
- The Role of Effective Communication in managing your day more effectively
- Techniques to Manage Workplace Stress
- How to manage the demands of others who want/need your time
